What does this tell us?

December and January are not good times of year to carry out polls, or people were not excited by the topic, or ...

Possible response ideas

To decide if the polls are worth continuing the board needs to:

- Ask people with Learning disabilities on the board if we should continue.
- Take advice from other experts on the board too.
- Consider if the polls:
 - are accessible
 - offer the board useful information.
- Consider how we can gain more buy-in e.g. can we support activity services and target support workers and carers to increase participation? What would be an incentive?
- Identify how the board responds to the feedback and how it makes a difference. Do we do this effectively? How do we feedback? How can we do better?
